SUBJECT: Shared Services Website Now Available

We are pleased to let you know that a new website is now available to keep you informed on our shared services efforts at <http://www.CollaborativeServices.ohio.gov>.

The site provides general information, frequently asked questions and answers, and recent communications. In the near future, it will include recommendations that will allow our agencies to work together on back office, administrative functions while strengthening and protecting the missions of both agencies. The website also features a “contact us” tab where you can submit your ideas and questions. We hope that you will take advantage of this tool for providing feedback.

In addition, we wanted everyone to have the chance to hear directly from both of us. Please visit the website today and watch the posted video.

Stay tuned for more announcements, and we will update the website as new information is available. Thank you in advance for your feedback during this exciting time of collaboration, optimizing services, and increasing efficiencies.
